NS BULLETIN

OFFICIAL INTERNAL ORGAN OF THE
National Socialist White Peoples Party AND THE National Socialist Youth Movement

Number 261

December 1979 YL-91

"Even then I always came out in favor of taking a position in important questions of principle against all public opinion when it assumed a false attitude—disregarding all considerations of popularity, hatred or struggle. The [National Socialist movement] should not become a constable of public opinion, but must dominate it. It must not be the servant of the masses, but their master!

"There exists, of course, and especially for every movement that is still weak, a great temptation, in moments when a more powerful enemy has succeded in driving the people to a mad decision or to a false attitude through his arts of seduction, to go along and join the shouting, particularly when there are few reasons—even if they are merely illusory—which, from the standpoint of the young movement itself, might argue this course. Human cowardice will seek such reasons so vigorously that it almost always finds something which would give it a semblance of justification, even from one's 'own standpoint,' for participating in such a crime."

Fall Building Campaign Progresses

The Party's annual Fall Building Campaign got underway in November with National Socialists from across the continent doing their share to strengthen the Party financially for the revolutionary struggles which lie ahead. As of 30 November, some $4,641.57 had been received by National Headquarters—a little over 46 percent of the $10,000 goal.

Comrades from Maine to Southern California, from Alaska to Florida donated to the campaign in its opening month. Many comrades responded to the Commander's appeal to donate one day's pay to the FBC. Some comrades gave substantially more than that. Others, unable to afford a whole day's pay at once, gave what they could and pledged to give more before the end of the campaign on 31 December.

"The response has been a tiny bit on the sluggish side," commented Business Manager Rick Cooper. "At this point we should be further along towards our goal than we actually are. We're hoping that those comrades who have given already but have pledged to give more will come through for us, and that those comrades who haven't contributed anything yet won't forget us. The Two-Year Plan is an important turning-point in the history of the Party, and we badly need the funds we're trying to raise under the Fall Building Campaign to launch it," he concluded.

Two Attacks Made on National Headquarters

Party National Headquarters was attacked twice in November by unknown assailants. Fortunately, no one was injured and no serious damage was done as the result of either attack.

On the evening of 4 November, Duty Officer Lawrence Freeman narrowly escaped death when a shotgun blast was fired at him through the front window of the headquarters from a passing car.

On 16 November a pipe bomb was thrown at the front of the building, causing some damage to nearby parked vehicles (none of which belonged to Party personnel) and knocking out the windows of a dentist office which is next to NHQ.

It is believed that the attacks were made by a Red splinter group as a form of retaliation for the Greensboro shootout, which left a number of Communists dead (see page 3). Although Party personnel were not involved in the Greensboro incident, Communist and Jewish terrorists do not distinguish between the NSWPP and other racist organizations.

Federal authorities are now investigating both incidents.

Nazi Hq. Target of Bombing

Arlington police, with the assistance of federal officials, are investigating a powerful bomb blast that occurred Friday and was apparently aimed at the headquarters of the National Socialist White Peoples' Party — the American Nazis.

According to Arlington police Officer Tom Bell, the explosion, which blew out windows in at least four buildings, occurred at about 9:30 p.m. outside the Nazis' building at 2509 Franklin Road.

No one was hurt in the blast, said Bell, who said "preliminary indications" are that the device was some sort of pipe bomb.

Officers from the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms took samples to their labs in Rockville, Md., for study.

Capt. William Packett, head of the department's operations division, said no one called police to claim responsibility for the bomb.

"So far, police have no suspects," Bell said.

Earlier this year, a letter bomb addressed to the Nazis' mailbox was intercepted by U.S. officials before it was delivered.

National Socialists Commemorate Munich Massacre

National Socialists in North America joined with other comrades around the world on 9 November in commemorating the 56th anniversary of the Munich massacre. The massacre, in which 16 National Socialists were murdered and dozens more were injured (including Adolf Hitler), ended a two-day uprising by the young Movement in the Bavarian capital. The uprising failed because it was betrayed by right-wing political, police and military officials who had initially pledged to support the revolt only to lead in its brutal and bloody suppression.

In Arlington, a solemn meeting and ceremonies led by Commander Koehl were held to mark the event. In his address, the Commander drew a parallel between the apparent destruction of the Movement in 1923 and its apparent destruction in 1945. In 1923 the Movement suffered a major setback, only to return stronger than ever and eventually be successful. Likewise, the crushing military defeat of 1945 did not cause the Movement's death. Rather, it has arisen from the ashes of that defeat to once again raise the Swastika banner of Adolf Hitler's Cause.

In Chicago, the date was commemorated by a special meeting at the Midwest Regional Headquarters in Cicero. A packed hall at the headquarters watched the NS film classic Triumph of the Will, after which refreshments were served and the upcoming White Pride Day demonstration was discussed.

White Pride Day Demonstrations Held

The second annual White Pride Day was celebrated this year on 10 November by demonstrations in various cities. (White Pride Day is the Saturday which falls closest to 9 November.)

In the National Headquarters area, Commander Koehl led a procession of National Socialists in laying a wreath at a monument in Alexandria, Va., to those White men who fought for the Confederacy. A sash on the wreath read: "To Those Who Died for White America." Black politicians have been urging that the monument be torn down, as they feel it is an "insult" to Blacks.

In Chicago, a large group of National Socialists from that city and Milwaukee held a march through the Chicago Loop area, winding up in Daley Plaza. The National Socialists carried signs reading "WHITE HONOR," "WHITE PRIDE," and "WHITE UNITY."

After the National Socialists had been there for about 30 minutes, a rag-tag band of reactionaries demanding U.S. military intervention in Iran showed up at the same location for a demonstration. The right-wing turkeys were carrying signs calling for the use of nuclear weapons to free the hostages and chanting "Khomeini is a meany!" A short while later the newsmedia arrived and proceeded to ignore the National Socialists while lavishing attention on the reactionaries who were beating the drums of war.

Reacting flexibly to the situation, the National Socialists marched towards the war mongers chanting "Death, death, death to the Shah!" This bold move stunned the goofy right wingers, the newsmedia and the police. The authorities quickly separated the two groups and the newsmedia finally focused their attention on the Party demonstration. A Party spokesman gave interviews to the newsmedia giving the Party's position on the hostage situation and debated the head of the right wing group on the nature of the war fever which the System is trying to whip up among the American people.

The Party received extensive television and radio coverage as a result of the demonstration/confrontation, which was also mentioned in the local press and in Time magazine.

Klan, Nazi Extremist Groups Have Foothold Here

Nazi Party Recruiter Seeks Help For Right-Wing Causes

By Leslie Scism

REIDSVILLE—John Norman III's green eyes sparkled as he talked about the recent "Death to the Klan" march in Greensboro in which five Communists died and nine others were wounded when a caravan of Nazis and Ku Klux Klanners drove through and opened fire.

"Public reaction is on our side, you know," said Norman, head of Rockingham County's National Socialist White People's party. "As we expected, of course. I've had many telephone calls, and the people all say, 'We're with you 100 percent. What can we do to help?' "

Norman wasn't at that bloody fusillade in Greensboro, but as head of Rockingham's Nazi party, he has keen interest in it. And, in general, he is obsessed with anything related to Nazism.

"One woman called who said she didn't want to identify herself because she's from a fairly well-to-do family," Norman said. "But I could tell she was from the Martinsville (Va.) area by the way she talked. She wanted to know why we didn't kill more of them."

Norman has been talking about the "Death to the Klan" march a lot in the past 10 days, explaining that it illustrates growing hatred for the Communist party and mushrooming sentiment for white-supremacist, anti-Communist groups such as the Nazi Party and the Ku Klux Klan.

Tall, slightly heavy set with thinning brown hair, Norman, 33, was wearing a brown double-knit suit as he talked on a recent day. He would have liked to be dressed in one of the Nazi uniforms which hang in his closet, but, he said, the National Socialists have put "a moratorium on wearing of uniform mainly because we've been so lied and distorted about...We want to show people that we're not monsters, that the average Joe could be a Nazi."

As he had many times before, he lamented that "the problem is that no one knows what the Nazi Party is.

"We don't consider oursleves right-wingers or conservatives," he said. "We're revolutionairies. We offer a whole new ideology, a definite philosophy on life."

"We're based on the Adolph Hitler philosophy to the letter," he added quickly, talking faster now. "The problem is no one knows what that is.

"Basically they know it's an anti-Jewish, pro-white movement. But up until recent years they didn't know that."

Norman has known what Hitler's philosophy is since an early age. Reared in a comfortable Rockingham County middle-class family, his father was a manager in one of the area's industries.

That father "believed in reading books and lots of them." For a child born just as the Armistice came, that often meant reading about the great and glorious Second World War.

"The more I read, the more I liked Adolph Hitler," Norman said. "And the more I read, the more discrepancies I found."

Those discrepancies were over who the bad guys actually were. Hitler, he read, was "fighting for preservation of the Christian faith, the white race; he was opposed to capitalism making exorbitant profits, exploitation of the working classes, racial mixing; he was an ecologist."

Norman became convinced that these were the world's guiding principles. To learn more he read Hitler's "Mein Kamp" when he was 13 and remains convinced that "next to the Bible, the book has got to be the greatest book ever written."

Throughout his high school years, he was regarded as a lonely, good student who would argue with anyone who would lend an ear.

Norman did not choose to go to college, beginning a succession of jobs, he said, to put him in contact with the masses—factory work, construction work, sales. During his 20's he continued reading about Nazism—convincing himself that he must become a party member so he could work toward a Nazi revolution in the United States. He began examining literature from the host of Nazi parties in the United States to find one that matched his philosophy. Most of the parties, he said, were "led by ignorant trouble makers, morons." He finally found a satisfactory one two years ago, based in Arlington, Va., and he became a full-fledged comrade.

He said his political affiliation has not caused him to be ostracized, but he declined to have his place of employment printed in the newspaper. "I have a wife and two kids, you know," he said.

His role is to "begin breaking in this thing in the South," he said. "I'm not overly active in trying to organize anything in Rockingham County." He declines to say how many members the group has, explaining that "sometimes it's better to be overestimated, sometimes underestimated."

His main duty, he said, is to conduct a talent search for "idealistic National Socialists who will develop into leaders for the coming revolutionary times." He gives them guidance and reading material.

He is considering public office himself, expalining "we've got to elect National Socialists sometimes." No National Socialists have been elected nationwide so far, he said, "although in Milwaukee two Nazi women almost got elected to the School board but the Party made the mistake of running two candidates instead of one."

Despite such an abyssmal election record, Norman remains confident about his and the party's future.

"The mood of the country seems to be turning in our favor," he said. "People are tired of doctors and lawyers running this country," he said, and they are also scared of Communists.

Norman sees the Nazi Party as the world's chance for salvation and hopes he will be part of the evangelistic team.

"I used to think when I was a young boy that I had missed all the excitement in the world, that World War II was the end of revolutionary times.

"But I don't think so now. This struggle is the important one, and if we lose this struggle we're going to die.

Statement

The Greensboro Shootout

On 3 November, members of the Ku Klux Klan and a splinter NS group were involved in a shootout with members of the Communist Workers Party in Greensboro, N.C. Although NSWPP personnel were not involved in the incident, we feel that the way the press reported the event requires us to comment upon it.

The confrontation was portrayed in the newsmedia as a "massacre," in which "innocent, unarmed, anti-racist demonstrators were murdered in cold blood by 'Nazis' and the KKK," who were operating in cooperation with the local police.

Nothing could be further from the truth.

Here are some facts which have come out in investigations since the shootout:

- The CWP was seeking a violent confrontation with the Klan, and had asked the police to stay away from the demonstration;
- The CWP hoped that the confrontation would end in the death of a number of CWP members—who would then become Red "martyrs," and help focus national media attention on the CWP;
- Although the CWP was granted a permit to hold their "Death to the Klan!" rally only if they promised not to bring weapons to it, most of the CWP members were armed with handguns and wooden clubs;
- The violence began when the CWP members attacked the Klansmen;
- The CWP members fired the first shots and only then did the Klansmen return fire—in self-defense.

Some National Socialists may question the political wisdom of agreeing to confront a numerically superior enemy, openly seeking a confrontation, known to be armed and eager to use violence, at a "Death to the Klan!" rally in a Black neighborhood. Be that as it may, it appears clear that the Klansmen and other White militants present were acting only in self-defense when they returned the gunfire which the Communists had initiated.

The National Socialist White People's Party strongly supports the right of all White people to keep and bear arms, and it encourages its members and supporters to own legal firearms and be proficient in their use and maintenence.

Furthermore, we commend all white people—including the Greensboro men—who are willing to use deadly force to protect themselves when assaulted, whether by a Black mugger or a Communist mob.

ACTIVITIES IN BRIEF

- National Organizer Martin Kerr was interviewed on KDKA-radio in Pittsburgh on 15 November. Comrade Kerr answered questions put to him by the moderator and by the listening audience. The day before, Comrade Kerr spoke to a large audience of High School students in Rockville, Md. Jewish and Black organizations protested the school's decision to allow Comrade Kerr to address the students, which resulted in much local press coverage.

- A lengthy page-one interview with North Carolina Organizer John Norman appeared in the Madison, N.C., Messenger on 14 November. This excellent interview is reproduced in full on the next page.

- Elsewhere in the heart of Dixie, other National Socialists are spreading the good word of White Power. Mississippi comrades were blasted in the Delta Democrat-Times on 11 November after they issued a press release saying that they intended to organize local Whites in the same way that the NAACP has organized Blacks. Part of the publicity received by the Mississippi comrades is reproduced here.

- Organized WHITE POWER and leaflet distributions were reported by comrades in Chicago, Indianapolis, Michigan, Milwaukee, New York and Shreveport (La.) during November.

- A uniformed WHITE POWER sale was held in Derry, N.H., on 20 November.

- Party Business Manager Rick Cooper traveled from Arlington to Northern California and back in November in order to conduct some Party and some personal business. Comrade Cooper's visit to the area (where he attended Fresno State University years ago) drew some media notice, including a front page article in the Fresno Guide and an interview on the evening news of the local NBC affiliate.

- Hundreds of White Power posters, bumper stickers and mini-stickers were discovered by Chicago residents on buses, bus stops, train stations and tunnels on the morning of 25 November, evidently the work of some industrious phantom National Socialists the night before. Other recipients of revolutionary White people's literature included various Communist bookstores and "holocaust" exhibits.

TWO-YEAR PLAN NOTES

The Importance of Community Service Activities

The Commander has indicated that there are three things which local units (and individual comrades) should concern themselves with especially under the Two-Year Plan: Public activities, study and community service. In the last NS BULLETIN we discussed some methods for home study by groups and individuals. Now let us look at community service activities.

Community service activities are non-political actions in which we volunteer our time and energies in order to help our racial kinsmen.

There are many such activities that a local unit can perform, and these activities in turn offer the unit a wide variety of benefits. In the first place, they focus the attention of the unit member on the positive, idealistic side of our world view. All too often, National Socialist activists become obsessed with the things that they are against—sometimes to the point where they lose sight of what the Movement is really trying to accomplish.

Second, community service activities, which bring no immediate benefits in the way of publicity or money, remind us that our duty is to serve our people. It is easy to forget this when the people you are attempting to serve consistently hurl obscenities and beer cans at you when you appear in public in uniform. It is all too easy to become bitter, cynical and fed up with the "White masses." For the racial idealist, this is an incorrect and dangerous attitude. We must not turn our backs on our people just because they have been (temporarily) brainwashed into hating us.

Third, such activities give us the chance to get out among our people and to get to know them better. We learn what is on their minds, how they think, what their problems are and what their needs and desires are.

Fourth, our people get to know us better. They can see for themselves that we are not the vicious, stupid, arrogant creatures that the mass media has told them we are.

Fifth, we actually do something to help our racial kinsmen. If this does not produce a warm feeling in an activist's heart, that activist is no racial idealist—and no National Socialist.

The Party has encouraged local units to undertake community service activities in the past several years, with good results. Now we want to see these activities stepped up. Here are a few examples of what has already been accomplished:

During the summer of 1976, members of the Los Angeles Unit conducted an activity they called "Operation Paint-Over." Unit members, dressed in civilian clothes, would go into White neighborhoods in the city of Pasadena (where they were based) and paint over, free of charge, walls, sidewalks and so forth which had been defaced by Mexican gang writing. Such spray-painted graffiti is a major concern to Los Angeles-area homeowners who live in close proximity to Mexicans. Those homeowners who were aided were greatly appreciative of the efforts of the unit members. As they left, the National Socialists gave the homeowners a Party business card with a telephone number on it that they could call if they needed the services of Operation Paint-Over again.

A year and a half later, in February of 1978, the L.A. Unit took part in a cleanup effort to aid victims of severe mudslides which devastated the White working class communities of Sunland and Tujunga, in Los Angeles County.

In January of 1979, Milwaukee Party comrades volunteered their services to elderly Whites who had been victimized by a blizzard. The National Socialists shoveled sidewalks and driveways for the oldsters—for free.

In April, Chicago comrades cleaned up a neighborhood park (and the sidewalks and streets surrounding it) of Winter debris.

Also in April, Minneapolis Party comrades collected over $200.00 in canned goods and cleaning gear to help the victims of late Spring flooding by the Red River.

These are just some examples of what can be done. With Winter upon us once again, new opportunities present themselves for local units to pitch in and help out those unable to shovel snow, clean sidewalks of ice and start their cars. There is no reason why those comrades who live in the Northern portion of the country cannot undertake such community service activities this Winter.

As revolutionaries, community service and charitable activities should not be our primary activities, but rather should supplement our more overtly political efforts. Yet they are a necessary supplement, if we are to avoid becoming obsessed with the things we are against.

As mentioned earlier, too many activists concentrate almost exclusively on the negative aspect of our struggle. Yet it is not enough to smash the System. We must be able to build something in its place, and that will take more than just the hatred of the Jews and of White race-traitors.

For hatred is not a sustaining emotion (at least not for Aryans), nor is it fundamentally a constructive one. As National Socialist revolutionaries, our primary motivation must be a genuine love of our own people. And if our love is in fact genuine—and not merely lip service—it will find concrete expression in a myriad of ways, not just in words, but in deeds as well.

Reproduced here is an ad for the Party which now appears in the Yellow Pages for Orange County, Calif., thanks to the efforts of the local Party unit. When the phone company refused to print the Swastika as part of the ad, the unit members demanded that the Star of David also be banned from the Orange County Yellow Pages—which it now is. We call that an even trade!

There is no reason why all units which have a White Power Message or business phones cannot have a similar ad in the Yellow Pages in their area!

Transfer Announced

Comrade Steve Martinson, formerly unit leader of the Richard Biederman Unit in Minneapolis, has been transferred to the Midwest Regional Headquarters in Cicero, where he will be serving as the Chief of Operations for Party activities there. Commensurate with his new responsibilities, Comrade Martinson has also been promoted to the rank of Group Leader in the Stormtroops.

A Note From the Membership Secretary

The new 1980 Official Supporter Cards will be ready on 1 January. All Official Supporters must have their pledges current to receive their new cards.

We encourage all OFFICIAL SUPPORTERS to submit pledges one year in advance to cut down on the paperwork at National Headquarters, to save the Party postage (and materials) used in acknowledging individual monthly pledges and to make our job to administer the Official Supporter program more effective. To this end, Official Supporters who remit their pledges 10 months in advance, will receive credit for twelve months.

All PARTY MEMBERS may pay their membership dues for one year in advance at the rate of $200 per year (a $40 savings). When paying dues in this manner, please specify that the $200 is for Membership dues.

If there are any questions regarding the above, feel free to contact the Membership Secretary at National Headquarters.

School Visit by American Nazi Group Is Criticized

By Tonya D. Swanson
Washington Star Staff Writer

Members of the black and Jewish communities of Montgomery County have raised objections to yesterday's authorized visit by members of the National Socialist White People's Party to Wootton Senior High School in Rockville.

The organization, which claims white supremacy and advocates separatism of the races, was invited to speak at a two-hour assembly sponsored by the school's Problems of the Twentieth Century (POTC) class. About 130 junior and senior class members attended.

Parents were also invited to attend the assembly. But shortly after they were made aware of it, school officials reported receiving a few complaints from parents, mostly Jewish, who felt the airing of such views in an educational setting might lend credence to them.

"It would be different if we were living in a community where the concepts of integration and freedom were constant," said Norman Seay, president of the county branch of the NAACP.

"But the things that we fought for in the 1960s are even being overturned."

As further evidence that these types of groups should be carefully watched, Seay cited instances of cross-burnings in the county three years ago, the infiltration of the Ku Klux Klan in some area high schools and the scrawling of obscenities on cars owned by blacks.

His concern, Seay said, is that of the students who heard members of the party speak "somebody might pick up on that, and that might set it on." He said he felt school officials should have invited members of the Jewish, black and other minority communities to speak on the same program so that students would be able to hear all sides of the issue.

Defending his decision to allow the group a forum, principal James A. Coles said the class often invites speakers of various ideologies to talk with the students.

"I thought it was a good educational experience for the kids," Coles, who has been principal at the school for the past nine years, said. "I don't see any harm done by it. It was better for them to get the information properly. I think the kids have a much better insight now into what the organization stands for, what its objectives are."

Better known as the American Nazi Party, the group is looking toward "a revolution" which will occur sometime between now and the year 2000, area organizer Martin Kerr told the students. It will end, he said, with the creation of a United States totally for white people alone. The group defines white people as those of white European descent. Kerr said all of the "inferior races" would then be relocated to other parts of the world.

During his talk, Kerr told the students that intelligence tests reveal the superiority of white people. Kerr also said blacks "are not smart" and offered one viewpoint as evidence which states that members of that race are 2,000 years behind white people in their mental capabilities.

"White people are the ones who created the real civilization. They have been the inventors. The whole history of mankind shows that white people have been productive," Kerr said.

The organization considers Jews a race of people and denies the extermination of nearly six million of them by Hitler. Kerr said all such allegations are nothing more than a "fairy tale," and that Anne Frank "died of typhoid fever."

At the end of Kerr's talk students, many of whom were visibly upset by what they had heard, lined up to ask a battery of questions. Some wore scull caps to symbolize their Jewishness.

Kerr, a member of the organization since 1966, remained unshaken. Although some students tried to sway him, he did not change his stance.

Delta Democrat-Times Greenville, Mississippi Sunday, Nov. 11, 1979 11

Did Nazis come to Bolivar?

CLEVELAND—Did a chance meeting at a Jackson watering hole bring the Nazis to Bolivar County?

That is the claim made Saturday by a person who would only identify himself as "state unit commander" for the National Socialists White Peoples' Party.

The unidentified spokesman was contacted by way of the Arlington, Va. office of the NSWPP after the Delta Democrat-Times received a letter in Saturday's mail claiming that three Nazi organizers were in Bolivar County to meet with "potential members."

The man who answered the telephone in Arlington would not give the name of anyone in Mississippi who might belong to the organization, but said he would have someone from Jackson call the newspaper.

The Jackson caller wouldn't give any names or say how many Bolivar Countians are members of the group whose goal, according to the press release, "is to promote white power in opposition to the NAACP."

The press release says the Nazi band is a non-violent, Christian organization that won't abide illegal or criminal activities.

The unidentified caller said he met a man over drinks at a Jackson bar who later expressed interest in getting a Nazi group organized in Bolivar County. The letter received by the DD-T was postmarked Shelby.

The caller said he knew nothing about the letter.

"We're like a bunch of Baptist ministers, really," the caller said, when asked what kind of Bolivar Countians are associated with the group. "We're very idealistic, very moralistic."
